Curt:

I ask again that you confirm the start time for our September 23 meeting in my office, and advise me of who will attend.

In order to maximize the prospects for a meaningful exchange, I ask that Nationwide be prepared to address the following questions and proposals at our meeting:

1. Will Nationwide agree to make a good-faith attempt to identify the persons most knowledgeable of the genesis and history of the practice in question -- that is, the use by Nationwide's insurance agents of the modifier "full" in characterizing PIP (or any aspect of PIP) within "rate quotes", memoranda of insurance and other documents?
2. Will Nationwide agree to distribute our "document search message" (set forth at page 2 of my August 24, 2005 letter), not only to its proposed list of custodians but also to the persons to whom they report?
3. How was the document search conducted in the Fraser case?
4. What document management systems does Nationwide use? How if at all are they searchable?
5. What document management systems do Nationwide's insurance agents in Delaware use? How if at all are they searchable?
6. Are there occasions when Nationwide's management issues instructions, guidance or suggestions to its insurance agents regarding the content or form of documents to be used in the sale of auto insurance products? If so, from whom do those instructions, etc. typically come? In cases where the instructions, etc. are in writing, how and where are they stored?
7. Are there occasions when Nationwide's management issues instructions, etc. to its underwriting staff regarding the form or content of documents to be used in the sale of auto insurance products? What persons would typically be involved in such an exchange? How and where would records of such an exchange be found?
8. How are form underwriting documents for auto products developed? Who at Nationwide would be a likely custodian for such documents? How and where would records of such activity be found?

9. Does Nationwide have a central file server? If so, how is it searchable?

If Nationwide can address these questions in a meaningful way, the September 23 meeting is bound to be productive. Thank you. John
